MAIL EARLY URGED BY POST OFFICE

Postmaster Frederick L. Herlihy today urged the citizens of Bay St. Louis to shop early and mail early this Christmas. He said, "It is the thought behind the gift of card, not the time of arrival which is the important consideration." In an appeal to all the citizens of Bay St. Louis, Postmaster Herlihy praised the fine cooperation of the past years when record mail loads were processed and delivered and asked that this same cooperation be again in evidence this year. "By following the simple suggestions of mailing early, wrapping carefully and addressing plainly, the citizens of Bay St. Louis will be assured of the safe and timely arrival of their Christmas mail," Postmaster Herlihy added.

"To put off mailing Christmas cards and parcels until the last moment results in an extra burden being placed on the postal employees and on the postal facilities of the Bay St. Louis post office, Mr. Herlihy pointed out.

Every facility of the Bay St. Louis post office will be pressed into maximum service so that again this year, as in the past, the Bay St. Louis post office will be cleared, if possible, of all Christmas mail by Christmas.

STRYCHNINE BLAMED FOR DOG'S DEATH

An air of mystery in the death of dogs in Bay St. Louis, between Union St. and St. Charles Ave., a six-block area, continued this week with strychnine poison being blamed.

A dog owned by Mrs. W. L. Argus, 916 South Beach Blvd., died Monday night. Mrs. Argus said the pet had been inside all day and she had let the dog go outside around 11:30 for half-an-hour.

Mrs. Argus said after the dog came inside she noticed it having fits and immediately phoned a Bay St. Louis doctor. The doctor arrived moments later, and attempted to save the dog as one last week was cured. However the dog died soon afterwards and again the diagnosis was strychnine.

Mrs. E. M. Brignac, 920 S. Beach Blvd., told the Sea Coast Echo that two of her dogs died earlier this month, the fourth pet of hers to die this year. All of her pets have been carefully fenced in, and again it was a mystery to the cause of death.

Bay St. Louis police officer said he has not received any complaints about the incidents, but reported that he had to shoot a dog on Ulman Ave. that appeared to have rabies.

Strychnine, which can be purchased at any drug store by leaving only the buyer's name and reasons for the poison, is a deadly drug which acts immediately.

Waveland Youth Captured After Chase In Woods

A 15-year-old Waveland youth was captured Friday afternoon by Hancock County officials after a long chase through Hancock county woods, and another youth surrendered Sunday—both sought by the sheriff's office in connection with a series of burglaries.

The two brothers last week confessed to a wave of thefts in the area, but escaped into nearby woods while being questioned by officers.

Reformatory Escapee
The 15-year-old, a three-time escapee from the Columbia training school, is being held in Hancock county jail, awaiting to be returned to the reformatory.

The youth's 17-year-old brother voluntarily surrendered to Sheriff Sylvan Ladner Sunday and will be held for Youth Court.

Aiding in the investigation with Ladner were deputies Jim Necaise and Carl Garriaga.

Bargain Days Start Today

Legion Launches Fund Drive For Annual Christmas Tree

"A tremendous shooting match" will raise the bulk of this worthy cause and assist in bringing a bigger and better Christmas season into the lives and hearts of many of our community's children, some who may not be visited otherwise.

"You will not be donating a dollar, but rather buying joy to yourself for the sunshine brought forth into the community by the smiles and laughter of our community's children at the annual American Legion Santa Claus' visit

Guyant urged all citizens of the community "to get behind this worthy cause and assist in bringing a bigger and better Christmas season into the lives and hearts of many of our community's children, some who may not be visited otherwise."

"You will not be donating a dollar, but rather buying joy to yourself for the sunshine brought forth into the community by the smiles and laughter of our community's children at the annual American Legion Santa Claus' visit and party," Guyant added.

Last year 3,000 children attended the Legion's Christmas party, and a larger group is expected to attend this year.

"When a Legionnaire calls on you with tickets, please be generous, for it is sponsored by the American Legion for all children, yours and ours, and for one of the happiest moments of your Christmas season plan to attend this Children's Christmas party yourself and share with us the wonderful feeling of a child's joy at Christmas," Guyant concluded.

"An eight day pre-Christmas offering of store-wide bargainings begins today in Hancock County with the inauguration of community Bargain Days, to be climaxed Saturday, Dec. 8, with the awarding of an array of prizes including a $525 color television set.

Also Saturday, the sixth annual Coast Electric appliance and equipment exhibit will be held at Bay High's gymnasium.

County-Wide Bargainings
Many business establishments in Bay St. Louis and Hancock County, acting through the Retail Merchants' Committee of Commerce, are sponsoring the bargain day program, offering many sales and prizes to be given away at 8 o'clock Saturday night at Bay High gymnasium.

A crowd of 2,500 is expected to attend the Coast Electric exhibits, featuring the latest in electrical appliances and equipment, a program of music and participation in the drawing of awards.

To celebrate the week long event, an "open house" party is planned Saturday evening. Coast Electric's meeting is scheduled to be completed by 4:30 p.m. and the exhibit will close from that time until 6 o'clock, when the doors to the gymnasium will be thrown open again to the general public.

Agenda Next Week
The details of the program for the Saturday evening event will be announced in next week's Sea Coast Echo. "There will be no charge," Octave Delph, prize awards, beautiful exhibits of the latest electrical and electronic appliances, in all, a fitting climax to a week-long event that we trust will prove profitable and fun for all," Delph added.

SANTA TO ANSWER LETTERS THRU ECHO

In a special radio-telephone conversation with Santa Claus in the North Pole, St. Nick told the Sea Coast Echo he would begin next week reading and answering letters addressed to him in care of this newspaper.

Santa also said he and his helpers were preparing many toys and gifts and said his reindeers are in fine health and will be ready to make his famous round-the-world trip Christmas eve, to deliver the presents.

Santa said he has received many pleasant reports of the good behavior of children in the Hancock County area and is sure if they stay as good as they are now this Christmas will be one of the merriest ever.

All letters should be addressed to Santa Claus, The Sea Coast Echo, Box 230, Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Negro Shot With Home-made Gun

A home-made .22 calibre pistol and an altercation over a pack of cigarettes culminated in a Friday night shooting that resulted in serious injury to a Bay St. Louis Negro and the jailing of another.

Abraham Smith, 43, was listed in a serious condition at a Biloxi hospital from a bullet lodged in his hip, fired from a pistol fashioned from a .22 rifle by Harry Leroy Lyons Jr., 19, Bay St. Louis.

Claims Took Cigarettes
Sheriff Sylvan Ladner reported that Lyons is being held in the Hancock County jail awaiting development of Smith's condition.

The officer said the argument arose after Lyons claimed Smith had taken a pack of cigarettes from his pocket. Lyons said Smith had threatened him with a knife or razor.

The shooting occurred outside the Krack Bar, which was closed at the time.

Smith was taken to King's Daughters hospital and transferred to the Veterans Hospital in Biloxi.

Investigating officers were Sheriff Ladner, and deputies Gerald Farve and Lathan Garriaga.

Mr. and Mrs. C.C. McDonald have had as their guest, Mrs. Helen Labarre and Raymond McDonald's sister, Mrs. William K. Turner, Tulsa, Okla.

As your most dependable servant, there is no limit to the errands I can (and do) run for you... day or night, rain or shine. I furnish the equipment I need to do my job, and keep it in repair. I have the help, in doing your work, of 310,000 others of me in our state... who also serve the other people of Mississippi and work for our state's development.

Though my services at present are practically unlimited, I am an inventor... I constantly seek to improve what I do for you. My appearance has changed many times... and it will do so again in countless future tomorrows as I aid man's progress.

I am often taken for granted except when there's a crisis.

Because of me and the 310,000 others of me, 4,600 Mississippians have jobs which pay them about $17 million annually... the schools, roads and other public-supported enterprises have $8 million annually through our taxes.

Have you ever stopped to consider life without me... ever stopped to evaluate my service... I realize how much I do for so little... how many miles of driving, riding or walking I save you day in and day out? What am I?

I am YOUR,

LET'S KEEP THOSE DOLLARS AT HOME

The Retail Merchants of Bay Saint Louis are to be congratulated on staging COMMUNITY BARGAIN DAYS at this time of the year.

They are challenging you—the buying public—to visit their stores and compare the bargains they are offering with those offered "across the bridges" where the grass may look greener but the bargain may prove dubious.

Each dollar spent at home finds its way around to the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker. Your combined purchases at home bring more employment at home, more employment at home means more business, and so the wheel revolves.

The challenge has been made, may we suggest you visit our local merchants' stores, take advantage of the bargains offered.

Too, there is the Electrical Exhibit provided largely by our local appliance dealers that has been open to our rural friends, but not attended by many of us "town folks." This exhibit is open to all. It is a fine exhibit and we can all see the exhibit, and enjoy a program, we hear.

Come on, folks, let's make it a community affair, the Bay St. Louis merchants are challenging you to compare their bargains, compare their prices, and then if you're satisfied, SHOP AT HOME. Do you accept their challenge?

BAY HIGH SCHOOL PAPER BLASTS FACULTY TO GIVE 'CREDIT DUE'

Bay High School's newspaper, The Student Prints, editorially blasted the administration and faculty in this month's edition for failing to give "credit where due."

In an editorial in this term's first paper, released Wednesday, the paper said "at the end of the school year students are called in the auditorium for presentation of awards for outstanding work in band, chorus, piano, football, track, etc. The students with outstanding grades are not even mentioned, with the exception of the Valedictorian and Salutatorian of the Senior Class."

GIRL SCOUTS COLUMN

With twelve troops now organized and going and a class of new leaders receiving their pins, scouting is really beginning to hum in the Bay St. Louis Neighborhood Association, which includes all of Hancock County.

New leaders who received their pins at an investiture service on Monday night are: Mrs. W. L. Turner, Miss Ruth Longest, assistant Mrs. H. A. Torgersen; Mrs. Julian O'Neal, assistant Mrs. Leo Parker; Mrs. Roland Wilkerson; Logtown: Sister Paul Anthony; Kith: Mariner troop is led by Mrs. Donald Chamberlain, assistant Mrs. Gary Taylor.

The Juliette Low Tea was held at Bay-Waveland Yacht Club on October 31, and 2200 pennies were given to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. There will be no meeting for leaders in the month of December, due to the fact that all of us are so busy with family activities and Christmas plans for our troops. A large group of leaders go to Gulfport this week for training in Christmas crafts. The girl scout record player and equipment for investiture ceremonies can be checked out at the Bay Merchant Company. Mrs. Osmach has kindly consented to take charge of it.

Neighborhood officers are: Mrs. B. H. Sharp, chairman; Mrs. Jos. V. Chilson, vice-chairman; Mrs. Thomas McAuley, secretary; Mrs. Donald Chamberlain and Mrs. J. B. Goldman.

HUMAN RELATIONS EXEC. SPEAKS AT ST. AUGUSTINE'S
Mr. William H. Gremlay, executive secretary of The Commission on Human Relations of Kansas City, Mo., recently addressed the faculty and student body of St. Augustine's Seminary.

Mr. Gremlay discussed in detail what sociologists today consider the major problems of human relations. He pointed them out in order of importance as the lack of proper housing facilities, the integration of educational institutions, and the effect the U. S.'s human relation problems have on its foreign policy. The speaker then commented on how they are successfully solving these difficult problems in Kansas City, Mo.

An informal question and answer discussion followed the lecturer's topics.

THE WORLD OF NATURE

Colors of Birds

Birds are of interest to man chiefly from three different aspects. These are aesthetic, economic, and scientific. The aesthetic value is due to color and music, chiefly. Some of the economic value is due to color of plumage, particularly in the case of feathers used for ornaments. Color is a major factor in the determining of species of closely related birds. Thus, we see that the color of the bird is important not only to the bird itself, but to man.

Color in birds, as in all other non-luminous objects, is due to the reflecting quality of the feathers. In some instances, the color is due to the pigments contained in the feathers while in other cases it is due to their physical structure. Each color is produced by the reflection of its particular wave-lengths of light from the surface. If a pigment absorbs all of the light waves except the red, and reflects them, they produce the red color. In a like manner blue, green, yellow and other colors are produced.

Since each species of bird has a different color pattern which distinguishes it from all other species, it is interesting to note the use made of the color variations by the birds themselves.

Important Role

The breeding habits are all necessary for an animal to reproduce and bring up to maturity its young. Color plays an important role in the lives of some birds in this relationship. Apparently it is the species in which there is a distinct difference between the male and the female that color plays such an important part. The bright colors usually are found on the male, although there are species in which the reverse is true.

Some of the species common in our area in which bright colors of plumage is used in the courtship includes the ruby throated hummingbird. It is only the males that have the ruby spot on their throats. In the springtime when their fancy turns to thoughts of love, they fluff the feathers on their throats so the light produces a brilliant patch like a glowing coal of fire, and parade before the females with decorum.

It is the males of red-winged blackbirds that have the bright red and yellow spots in their wings. They, too, perform a kind of courtship dance as they parade before the females, exhibiting their colors and demonstrating their gallantry. They seem to be very successful since they usually or frequently win two or three females. Polygamy is a common practice with this species.

If three females are won for the nesting season, they may build nests in a triangular area and the male selects a site inside this area to sit as he guards them. He sings to the females while they incubate eggs and he attracts potential enemies and leads them away from the nesting area.

Color for Protection

If the female does all of the incubating of the eggs, she usually has less distinctive color in her plumage. While it is dull and monotonous, it blends with the surroundings of the nest. This makes it more difficult for enemies to locate the female on her nest, thus protecting her from them.

In the case of the phalarope, a swimming bird of the snipe family, the male incubates the eggs. It is the male that has the drab plumage. The female's coat is much more conspicuous.

It is characteristic of some young birds to have different color patterns to the adult. In some cases they do not acquire the mature plumage until sexual maturity is attained while in others, they take on adult plumage when physical maturity is attained.

In the case of mockingbirds, both male and female have the same pattern. They do not have bright colors. The juveniles have a coat very much like their parents. But this is not true of bluebirds. The parents, and especially the male, has a distinctly blue coat, while the young have a mottled blue-gray plumage. Our cardinals have a beautiful bright red coat. The male far more conspicuous than the female. The juveniles, while they more nearly resemble the mother, do not closely resemble either parent.

Our killdeer and our red-headed woodpecker have broken patterns which interrupt their profile. Their great activity takes them into so many backgrounds that a broken profile is probably the best protection.

Seasonal Differences

Distinctive seasonal changes do not occur among the permanent resident birds of the coastal region. If any changes occur in our summer nesting birds, it occurs after they leave here for their winter feeding grounds to the south, and change back before coming again next spring. If the winter visitants change color, they do it before they arrive for the winter, and again after they leave us to go back north for nesting.

Our new Gulf Coast steam-electric generating plant is well under way now and construction is nearing its peak. It is being constructed to supply the ever increasing demands of our customers, and to provide ample electrical power for the new industries, businesses and families which we have every confidence will locate in this area in the future. The construction of this plant, the building of new lines and other facilities in every community we serve, is evidence of our faith in the future of our southeast Mississippi service area.

The first unit of this new plant, when completed in mid-1957, will have a generating capacity of 100,000 horsepower. And through our modern network of high voltage transmission lines, interconnected with our two other steam-electric plants, the electrical energy generated will be available to every community we serve.

It will provide power for new industry — power for the expansion of existing industry — power for new stores and homes — and power for the increasing growth of our communities. Truly, this is another step in Mississippi's march toward a brighter future.
